

Treatment takes forgiveness, because there's no growth
without forgiveness.

Robert Coberly | Robert is a member of the Tulalip Tribes.
His daughter, Andrea Coberly, is a member of the Quileute Tribe.

Stigma tells stories that harm us.
We are telling stories that heal.

The way we talk about treatment tells a story that others take to heart. All it takes to change a story is one word.

For Robert, the word is forgiveness.

In Native-centered treatment, he found space to forgive himself and others, and to accept forgiveness.
